Case Study: Tough decisions in tough times

Presented by RSM Bird Cameron and nab agribusiness

This case study centres around a typical farming family who are facing decisions regarding the family business. Issues such as intergenerational succession, asset ownership, business structures, finance and debt issues, opportunities for acquisition of additional farming assets are just some of the topics to be covered. This case study is designed to focus discussion on issues and provide options and methodology to address those issues.

The template for making tough decisions in tough times

Gerard O'Brien, Director, RSM Bird Cameron

This session will provide a template (to follow on from the Case Study) that people can use to help work through issues that a review of a farming businesses operations and structure would possibly uncover. Participants could then in turn take this into their professional advisors and use it as the basis for succession and/or business planning.

Panel Discussion: Question and answer time

Panel members to include Gerard O'Brien, RSM Bird Cameron and Ben Westmore, Andrew Puckeridge and Barry Membrey, nab agribusiness.
